This is on top of the $200 wireless phone subsidy offered to Verizon customers that don't have an iPhone, and is part of a shift by the company to offer new services to customers with a subscription. Verizon has a strong incentive to make this offer because the subsidized price of the iPhone will only be $49 per month if Verizon users pay the full cost. That price is typically $10 more than the price of a new two year service with Verizon, but Verizon points out that you can see the full discount on the discounted price.
